JOB SUMMARY

Participates in research programs at the level of project supervisor or higher. Generally serves as Principal Investigator or co-Principal Investigator on a research project. Principal Scientists are distinguished from Research Faculty in that they are not expected to provide formal guidance to students or otherwise participate in instructional activities. Principal Scientists are expected to have national recognition in their field as evidenced by publications in quality journals with evidence of leadership as denoted by the first or lead authorship. Supervises research employees; non-exempt